

Timber Legality Associate

We are seeking a timber legality associate to support our growing team.

Global Traceability (GTS) has over fifteen years of experience in implementing industry networks and traceability solutions. Global Traceability offers RADIX Tree, an online platform for connecting and sharing data with the supply chain. Today over 90,000 companies are represented on the platform. Our tools give visibility over the raw materials that make up products and enable efficient due diligence to comply with regulation, such as the EUTR \(EU Timber Regulation\). To further expand this service we are looking for an associate to join our team of remote-working colleagues working across Europe and Asia.

What you will be doing:

- Working closely with our EUTR team to develop our EUTR compliance services
- Evaluating client supply chains and products, using your judgement to assess the data and documents obtained for their due diligence process.
- Use your knowledge to identify risk indicators.
- Acting on behalf of clients to ensure the necessary documents have been collected from the supply chain.
- Writing risk assessment reports, recommending mitigation measures in accordance to regulatory requirements.
- Supporting the technical roll-out of projects on the RADIX Tree platform.
- Supporting clients and their suppliers with online training.
- Monitoring case progress against target timelines, manage cases to completion.

As a valuable member of the GTS Team:

- Interacting with staff at all levels, joining company-wide conference calls and adding your insight to develop company strategies.
- Conducting research and keeping informed on news and developments.
- In future, opportunities to join colleagues for events, attending conferences and presenting to industry stakeholders.

What you will need:

- Qualification in related fields, chain of custody certification, or compliance.
- Good knowledge about environmental certification schemes, timber legality, legal compliance, corporate social responsibility or related field is a plus.
- Fluent language proficiency in English. Other language skills are a plus.
- Strong analytical skills.
- Strong and proactive communication and time management skills.

What we are looking for:

We are a tight-knit community of forward-thinking people and we seek other open minded, flexible people to join our team. We want you to have autonomy and ownership for the work you do. As a valued member of the team you can have a real impact on our solutions going forward. We want to see a passion for sustainability and how that can have a substantial impact on the world in which we live. Qualifications, experiences and personality are more important to us than your actual work location, which could be in Europe or Asia.

If you are interested in this position, we look forward to your application with cover letter and resume to info@global-traceability.com Please send with the subject heading: Application - Timber Legality Associate
